1 Governance

Introduction

The legal existence of Vassar College began with the passage of the law of January 18, 1861, referred to below as the charter. The charter has been five times amended. The trustees were constituted by the charter as an educational corporation known as Vassar College. The object and purpose of this corporation were declared to be to promote the education of young women in literature, science, and the arts. The charter designated twenty-nine persons and their successors, and the president, as trustees, and provided that nine trustees should be a quorum for the transaction of business, but that no real estate should be bought or sold, and no president or professor of the College should be appointed or removed, except by the affirmative vote of a majority of all the trustees.

On their own motion the trustees in November 1921 reduced their number to twenty-one, except in certain special circumstances. This number included the president and five representatives of the alumnae/i whose nomination by the Alumnae and Alumni of Vassar College the trustees have agreed to accept. No term of office was designated in the original charter, but on their own motion the trustees agreed to limit the term of their office generally to eight years, with the privilege of re-election after one year has elapsed.

In 1979, on their own motion the trustees adjusted the size of the board to range from a minimum of twenty-two to a maximum of twenty-nine. The maximum was increased to 35 in 2000. The trustees increased from five to six the trustees nominated by the Alumnae and Alumni of Vassar College. The regular term of a trustee was reduced to four years. Although trustees normally serve a single term, on the basis of the board's particular needs, a trustee elected to a regular term may be re-elected to a second consecutive term. In exceptional cases, such a trustee may be re-elected to a third consecutive term. No trustee elected to a regular term shall serve more than three consecutive regular terms.

As a chartered institution of higher education in the State of New York, the College is subject to visitation by the Board of Regents, to the regulations of such board, and to the requirements of the Education Law. Under this law (Section 226) the trustees are legally and financially responsible for the College and exercise all privileges of an educational corporation. They appoint all officers, grant degrees, and are the final authority within the College in all matters involving review and authorization. The board of trustees authorizes the annual budget, approves all contracts of appointment, receives all monies, executes deeds of gift, maintains the capital investments in plant and securities and, in general, executes all those duties which are proper to such a corporation.

The University of the State of New York establishes certain rules with respect to the length of the academic year, the course of instruction, and other matters of educational policy, with which the trustees are required to comply. Beyond these regulations the trustees have complete freedom with respect to the maintenance of the College.

This printing of the Governance of Vassar College includes, as separate parts, The Charter and Amendments; By-Laws of the Board of Trustees; Principles Underlying Relations of Trustees, Faculty and Students; The Educational Organization of the College; By-Laws of the Faculty; Joint Administration-Faculty Committees; and Joint Administration-Faculty-Student Committees. Together, they constitute the Governance. It constitutes a substantial revision of a similar publication in 1966, which in turn was the outgrowth, following a series of intermediate revisions of an original document entitled The Statute of Instruction published in 1923. By-Laws of the Board of Trustees and By-Laws of the Faculty are subject to amendment by the board of trustees and by the faculty, respectively, as and to the extent set forth therein. It is understood that no amendment of the By-Laws of the Faculty or of the Joint Administration-Faculty-Student Committees shall in any way have any effect on any other part of the Governance. Principles Underlying Relations of Trustees, Faculty and Students and The Educational Organization of the College are subject to amendment or repeal by the board of trustees after conference with the faculty or the students, as appropriate, or by the faculty or the students, as appropriate, subject to approval by the trustees.

The Governance is a document of frequent reference in the administration of the College. Its history reflects the evolution of this administration and the consistent adherence to certain basic principles. Its future will reflect the evolution of the College itself. For all its formalities, it is a living document.

Part 2. Mission Statement, Shared Governance, and Indemnification

Mission Statement of Vassar College

The mission of Vassar College is to make accessible “the means of a thorough, well-proportioned and liberal education”* that inspires each individual to lead a purposeful life. The College makes possible an education that promotes analytical, informed, and independent thinking and sound judgment; encourages articulate expression; and nurtures intellectual curiosity, creativity, respectful debate and engaged citizenship. Vassar supports a high standard of engagement in teaching and learning, scholarship and artistic endeavor; a broad and deep curriculum; and a residential campus that fosters a learning community. Founded in 1861 to provide women an education equal to that once available only to men, Vassar is now open to all and strives to pursue diversity, inclusion, and equity as essential components of a rich intellectual and cultural environment in which all members, including those from underrepresented and marginalized groups, are valued and empowered to thrive.

Principles of Shared Governance

The Governance of Vassar College establishes the rights and responsibilities of members of the college community including trustees, administration, faculty, students, and alumnae and alumni, and describes the organization and means of shared responsibility and distributed decision-making, consultation and advising that support and encourage fulfillment of the Mission Statement of the College.

The ultimate responsibility for Vassar College rests with the Board of Trustees, which manages the property, business and affairs of the College. The Board delegates responsibility, with accountability, over operations of the college to the president, and, as to certain matters, to the faculty, the students and the alumnae and alumni. While governance issues generally concern several constituencies, the Governance recognizes that certain areas are the primary responsibility of one group or person.

In striving to ensure effective and appropriate decision-making and in espousing the benefits of sharing in the work of the College, it is critical that all members of the community embrace the collective nature of the enterprise, while also recognizing the need for decision-making and acceptance of responsibility. It is also essential to acknowledge the different views, expectations and responsibilities that each individual and group brings to the governance process.

This statement of “Principles of Shared Governance” establishes primary foundations upon which the Governance is built. They are:

1. Mutual acknowledgement, trust, cooperation, and accountability
2. Respect for diversity of opinion and perspective

3. Rules, procedures, and decision-making for individuals and groups that are informed, transparent, inclusive, and timely
4. Respect for confidentiality

Employee Defense and Indemnification

Vassar College will defend and indemnify employees of the College against all liabilities and reasonable expenses in connection with the defense of any action, or any investigation relating thereto, arising as a direct consequence of discharging their authorized and assigned duties on behalf of the College, provided that the actions were (i) undertaken in good faith and (ii) with the reasonable belief that such actions were in the best interests of the College. The detailed terms, conditions and qualifications of the employee defense and indemnification policy are available from the Vice President for Finance and Administration. Nothing in this summary shall affect the terms and conditions of the complete policy.

B. A trustee elected to a regular term normally shall serve a single term. D. If the regular term as trustee of the chair of the board would otherwise expire prior to the expiration of such chair’s term of office, such regular term shall be extended to the end of such trustee’s term of office as chair of the board or, if elected to a second consecutive term as chair, to the end of such second consecutive term.

E. Any trustee shall be eligible for re-election to the board one year after the expiration of such trustee’s last term.
Amended by the board October 2006.

Section 3. Nomination and Election

A. The Trusteeship Committee shall nominate from names proposed to the board at a previous meeting such number of candidates as shall be required to fill the number of places of elected trustees at the time authorized by the board, other than those to be filled upon nomination by the AAVC. Such Trusteeship shall be made so that as nearly as practicable the terms of one-fourth of the authorized number of trustees on regular term shall expire each year.

B. When a vacancy occurs during or upon the expiration of the term of a member elected upon nomination by the Trusteeship committee, the Trusteeship committee may at any meeting nominate for election a successor to fill the unexpired portion of the current term or of the new term commencing on the expiration of such current term whose name shall have been proposed to the board at a previous meeting. When a vacancy occurs during the term of a trustee nominated by the AAVC, the AAVC shall nominate a successor for election to fill the expired portion of the current term or of the new term commencing on the expiration of such current term whose name shall have been proposed to the Board at a previous meeting.

C. When the Board authorizes an increase in the number of elected members otherwise than at an annual meeting, it shall fix the term of each newly authorized trustee subject to the limitation that such term shall expire on June 30 not later than four years after the commencement thereof, and the Trusteeship committee may at any meeting nominate a candidate to fill such term whose name shall have been proposed to the board at a previous meeting.

Amended by the board October 2006.

A. The term of appointment of the dean of the faculty is for five years, with eligibility for reappointment. The dean of the faculty is a tenured member of the faculty or, if elected from outside the college, immediately tenured upon appointment.

B. For a new appointment of the dean of the faculty

1. The search committee consists of five members of the faculty elected by the faculty, no two from the same department and no more than two from the same division.

2. The search committee, in cooperation with the president, defines the overall search process. To inform its deliberations, the committee consults with other faculty, with relevant administrators, with student leaders, and with others it chooses. The committee solicits Trusteeship and self-Trusteeship broadly for both internal and external candidates. The committee and president together narrow the candidate pool to those candidates who are to be invited to meet with the faculty and others. After reflecting on feedback from members of the faculty and the larger campus community, the president and the search committee discuss the candidates together. Any candidate who lacks the support of either the president or a majority of the committee as a suitable choice for dean is automatically removed from the candidate pool. The president, taking into account the preferences of the committee as well as their own judgment, then nominates a dean from the remaining candidates to be appointed by the board of trustees. An invitation to membership as a tenured full professor from an appropriate department is also necessary for nomination, if a candidate does not already hold such an appointment. If the president does not wish to nominate any remaining candidate or if all candidates decline the position, then the search is considered over and a new committee is elected to begin the process again. No member of the original search committee is eligible for election to the new committee.

C. For reappointment of a dean of the faculty

1. A review committee is selected in the fall semester of the fourth year of a dean's current contract with the review occurring in the spring semester. The president may defer or accelerate the selection and review by one semester when more than one reappointment review of the dean of the faculty, dean of the college, or dean of strategic planning and academic resources would otherwise occur in the same semester. The review committee consists of six faculty members. Three are elected by the faculty, no two from the same department and no more than two from the same division. One elected member must be an assistant professor, and the other two must be tenured associate or full professors. Three are appointed by the committee on committees from among faculty who have served during the dean's term on elected committees that work closely with the dean such as the faculty appointment and salary committee, the faculty policy and conference committee, or the committee on curricular policies. No faculty member who is being reviewed for second contract or promotion during the time of the review is eligible to serve on the review committee.

2. The review committee, in cooperation with the president, defines the overall review process. The committee reviews with the president the duties of the dean, as listed in the Governance, the dean's job description, and any other relevant materials. The committee solicits a personal statement from the dean and meets with the dean to discuss the statement. The committee solicits input on the dean's performance from faculty of all ranks including both tenure and non-tenure track positions, from administrators who work closely with the dean, and from the Vassar Student Association.

3. After it deliberates on the feedback it receives, the committee meets with the president to discuss its preliminary conclusions and any concerns before finalizing its recommendation. The committee then provides the president with a final report containing its conclusions, a summary of its deliberations, and suggestions for the dean's professional development when appropriate. In making its recommendation the committee considers whether the dean has demonstrated work of high quality. The committee recommends reappointment unless at least four members of the committee find that the dean has not demonstrated work of high quality, in which case the dean is not reappointed. Otherwise, the president considers the committee's final report in deciding whether or not to nominate a sitting dean to the board of trustees for reappointment.

4. If the dean of the faculty is not reappointed, a newly elected committee participates in the search for a new dean.

D. In the event of the dean's prolonged absence or incapacity, the president or acting president appoints a member of the faculty as acting dean, after consultation with, and with the approval of, the faculty appointment and salary committee.

Article III. The Dean of Strategic Planning and Academic Resources

2. The search committee, in cooperation with the president, defines the overall search process. To inform its deliberations, the committee consults with other faculty, with relevant administrators, with student leaders, and with others it chooses. The committee solicits Trusteeship and self-Trusteeship broadly for both internal and external candidates. The committee and president together narrow the candidate pool to those candidates who are to be invited to meet with the faculty and others. After reflecting on feedback from members of the faculty and the larger campus community, the president and the search committee discuss the candidates together. Any candidate who lacks the support of either the president or a majority of the committee as a suitable choice for dean is automatically removed from the candidate pool. The president, taking into account the preferences of the committee as well as their own judgment, then nominates a dean from the remaining candidates to be appointed by the board of trustees. An invitation to membership as a tenured associate or full professor from an appropriate department is also necessary for nomination, if a candidate does not already hold such an appointment. If the president does not wish to nominate any remaining candidate or if all candidates decline the position, then the search is considered over and a new committee is elected to begin the process again. No member of the original search committee is eligible for election to the new committee.

C. For reappointment of a dean of strategic planning and academic resources

1. A review committee is selected in the fall semester of the fourth year of a dean's current contract with the review occurring in the spring semester. The president may defer or accelerate the selection and review by one semester when more than one reappointment review of the dean of the faculty, dean of the college, or dean of strategic planning and academic resources would otherwise occur in the same semester. The review committee consists of six faculty members. Three are elected by the faculty, no two from the same department and no more than two from the same division. One elected member must be an assistant professor and the other two must be tenured associate or full professors. Three are appointed by the committee on committees from among faculty who have served during the dean's term on elected committees or positions that work closely with the dean such as the faculty compensation committee, the faculty policy and conference committee, the admissions committee, the library committee, or faculty athletics representative.

2. The review committee, in cooperation with the president, defines the overall review process. The committee reviews with the president the duties of the dean, as listed in the Governance, the dean's job description, and any other relevant materials. The committee solicits a personal statement from the dean and meets with the dean to discuss the statement. The committee solicits input on the dean's performance from the faculty of all ranks including both tenure- and non-tenure track positions, from administrators who work closely with the dean, and from the Vassar Student Association.

3. After it deliberates on the feedback it receives, the committee meets with the president to discuss its preliminary conclusions and any concerns before finalizing its recommendation. The committee then provides the president with a final report containing its conclusions, a summary of its deliberations, and suggestions for the dean's professional development when appropriate. In making its recommendation the committee considers whether the dean has demonstrated work of high quality. The committee recommends reappointment unless at least four members of the committee find that the dean has not demonstrated work of high quality, in which case the dean is not reappointed. Otherwise the president considers the committee's final report in deciding whether or not to nominate a sitting dean to the board of trustees for reappointment.

C. For reappointment of a dean of the college

1. A review committee is selected in the fall semester of the fourth year of a dean's current contract with the review occurring in the spring semester. The president may defer or accelerate the selection and review by one semester when more than one reappointment review of the dean of the faculty, dean of the college, or dean of strategic planning and academic resources would otherwise occur in the same semester. Assistant professors on full-time tenure track appointments are granted the option of a one-semester leave at full pay after four semesters of service with an additional one-semester leave at full pay during the second term of appointment, or a one-year leave at full pay during the second term of appointment. It is understood that, while the leave system is of great importance to the faculty and to the college, it is subject to the availability of funds in the event of financial stringency as determined by the board of trustees after consultation with the faculty. Leaves may be advanced or deferred by the president for up to three semesters.

B. Other leaves include:

1. Health Leaves: Leaves on account of illness, with or without salary, may be granted at the discretion of the president and the board of trustees. In cases of illness necessitating absence from classes, the full salary of a faculty member is continued up to two months. If the illness extends beyond two months, additional paid time may be granted at the discretion of the president. After six months, the faculty member will be placed on the college's disability insurance plan, and any further salary payment will be made in accordance with that plan.

C. Parental Leaves: All tenured or tenure-track faculty members who have completed at least one year of employment and visiting faculty members on multiyear contracts who have completed at least one year of employment are eligible for a paid leave when their child is born or adopted (if the child is under six years of age). A faculty member may elect one of the following benefit options, commencing no later than six months after the date of birth or adoption and granted by the president, upon recommendation by the dean of the faculty:

1. A two-course teaching reduction at full pay, to be taken in a single semester or split between two consecutive semesters, with the expectation of continued service, advising, and scholarship; or
2. A single semester off from all College responsibilities at two-thirds of that semester's salary. This semester does not count toward research leave accrual.

The faculty member should consult with the department chair and the dean of faculty as early as possible prior to the birth or adoption to make suitable arrangements for coverage of coursework and other duties as appropriate.

In cases where both parents are Vassar faculty members, or one a faculty member and the other a Vassar administrator, one parent is eligible for Vassar's paid parental leave under the appropriate policy for that employee.

A faculty member who requires a medical leave during their pregnancy is awarded time off and compensated under the appropriate disability provisions of the College.

Maternity Leaves - If a faculty member requests a semester leave for reason of pregnancy, the health leave provision of the Governance becomes applicable. This provides for two months' pay.

If a faculty member requests a reduced load for reasons of pregnancy, the rate of pay would be reduced in the same ratio as the workload. Full fringe benefits are continued. Contributions to TIAA/CREF are made in proportion to salary.

3. Leaves for Other Purposes: Leave with or without salary may be granted, for any purpose, at the discretion of the president and the board of trustees.

C. Credit for Leaves: Time spent in research leaves is credited to the term of service in determining seniority, salary, time of expiration of contract, payments toward annuities and insurance, and eligibility for college-owned housing. Other leaves may be credited within the term of service at the discretion of the president and the board of trustees.

Section 10. Professional Travel Expenses

A fund for traveling expenses is ordinarily set aside and divided among members of the faculty to support professional work related to the teaching, scholarship and service of the faculty.

Article II. Contractual Terms and Provisions

Section 1. Making of Contracts

Contracts between the college and appointees are drawn up and signed pursuant to Article I, Section 4 of Principles Underlying Relations of Trustees, Faculty and Students. The chair of the department and/or director of the program concerned is informed of all contractual terms, except the salaries of members of the department and/or program.

Section 2. Termination of Service

A. Expiration of Contract.

1. Tenure track and other term appointments may be discontinued by the board of trustees upon the recommendation of the president at the expiration of a contract on due notice in writing to the faculty member. Such action will be taken only after consultation with the department and/or program concerned, the faculty appointment and salary committee, and the dean of the faculty.
2. In all one- and two-year contracts, and all terminal appointments, prior notice of termination is embodied within the contract. Otherwise, notice will be given at least twelve months before the expiration of a contract after two or more years of academic service at the college.
3. In the case of dissolution of the contract by mutual consent before the end of the fiscal year, the salary paid will be in the same ratio to the year's salary as the number of weeks of actual service is to the weeks of the contract year.

B. Right to Appeal: Faculty members are entitled to a hearing before the appeal committee when they allege that a decision to terminate or not renew their contract was significantly affected by abridgment of academic freedom, failure to observe procedures, or discrimination.

C. Conditions of Tenure: Indeterminate tenure is contingent upon the continuance in the curriculum of full-time work for which the incumbent is qualified; if for a period of three years less than full-time work is available, the board of trustees may, upon the recommendation of the president after consultation with the faculty appointment and salary committee and the committee on curricular policies, terminate the appointment or modify the terms of appointment or the assignment of duties.

D. Dismissal for Cause: Dismissal for cause of faculty members before the expiration of their contract or of faculty members on indeterminate tenure are made only on the recommendation of the president after consultation with the chair of the department and/or director of the program concerned, the dean of the faculty and the faculty appointment and salary committee. The charges that may lead to dismissal are made in writing, and the faculty member is given the opportunity to present a response to the faculty appointment and salary committee. If a recommendation of dismissal is made, the faculty member has the right to a fair hearing by a faculty review committee. The initiation of the process of dismissal may rest with the president, the department or program concerned, or the faculty appointment and salary committee. Dismissal for reasons other than moral turpitude, serious criminal activity, or gross neglect of duty does not ordinarily take effect before the end of the current academic year.

Section 3. Benefits

Under the conditions described in the Faculty Handbook, eligible members of the faculty may: Purchase or rent college housing, receive tuition grants, receive group life insurance, workman's compensation insurance, health insurance, and group disability benefits insurance, and have contributions made in their name to the Social Security System and retirement annuities.

During research leaves, contributions are continued as though the participant were in full-time service. Contributions during other leaves are at the discretion of the president and the board of trustees.

Article III. The Faculty as Departments of Instruction

Section 1. Definition of Department

A department of instruction is a body of faculty responsible for the portion of the curriculum assigned to it by the faculty and the board of trustees.

Section 2. Educational Policy

Departments determine their own educational practice within the framework of college educational policies adopted by the faculty and administered by the dean of the faculty. Department faculty act on matters of concern to a specific department only after members have had reasonable opportunity to discuss them and make recommendations.

Individual faculty members have freedom in the conduct of classes within the scope of the courses assigned to them, so far as is compatible with the interests of the department as a whole and of the college.

Section 3. Suffrage

Teaching members of the department who have academic suffrage in the general faculty are entitled to vote in department meetings, except as specified elsewhere in the Governance. Any member may make suggestions, introduce motions, or participate in discussions. Any member may consult the president, the dean of the faculty, or the faculty appointment and salary committee on matters affecting the conduct of department business.

In department action on matters pertaining to extensions, reappointments, tenure, and promotions, the right to vote is restricted to members who have academic suffrage in the general faculty and who are of rank superior to that of the person under consideration, except that tenured professors are entitled to vote in cases involving others of the same rank and that tenured associate professors are entitled to vote on all new appointments and on tenure decisions regarding other associate professors. Faculty members on visiting or adjunct appointment may not vote on departmental matters pertaining to extensions, reappointments, tenure, and promotions, nor may any members who have not been reappointed for the ensuing year, except in those cases where the non-reappointment is the consequence of pending retirement. (Amended by the Faculty May 16, 2007).

Members of the department on leave of absence are not entitled to vote except in the election of a chair and in decisions concerning extension of contract, reappointment, tenure, and promotion to full professor in which they would normally be entitled to vote. Members of the department not reappointed for the ensuing year are not entitled to vote in the election of a chair. Members of the faculty who regularly teach in a department other than the department of their appointment do not vote in personnel reviews or the election of a chair in the other department.

A faculty member who is appointed to a full-time administrative position retains, for a period of five years, the same departmental suffrage rights as a faculty member on leave of absence.

Section 4. Department Meetings

Matters of concern to the department as a whole are presented in department meetings. The chair calls a meeting on the request of any two members. A quorum consists of a majority of the voting members. In departments that include more than one subject or more than one branch of study (e.g., theory and applied work), decisions on department practice affecting specifically one subject or branch must have the support of the majority of the teachers in that subject or branch. A majority vote of a department may be suspended on the request of a minority, and the question under consideration referred for decision to the president, the dean of the faculty, or the appropriate committee of the general faculty.

Section 5. Department Chair

A. Election and Term

1. Eligibility for the office of chair is restricted to professors and associate professors, except in departments in which there are no members of those ranks or in cases of emergency. The term of the chair is three years. While re-election of a chair is not precluded, election of a new chair from among the eligible members of the department is the normal practice. The department may, by election, extend a chair's term for one or two years. Should a chair be on leave for some part of their term, the department elects an interim chair. Should the office of chair become unexpectedly vacant, the department immediately elects an interim chair for the balance of the academic year; a normal election is held for a regular three-year term to begin the following academic year.

2. All elections are held by written ballot during the twelve months immediately prior to the beginning of the relevant term or extension. In an election involving three or more candidates, if no candidate receives a majority of the votes cast, there is a run-off election between the two candidates who received the highest number of votes. The dean of the faculty is promptly notified in writing of the election result.

3. If a department has fewer than three members of rank above that of instructor or if the normal electoral process fails to yield a chair elected by a majority, the chair is appointed for a term of three years by the dean of the faculty after consultation with the department and the faculty appointment and salary committee.

B. Duties: The chair is responsible to the department for the administration of its academic and business affairs. The chair prepares and submits to the president an annual report after consultation with the other members of the department.

Article IV. The Faculty as Members of Multidisciplinary Programs

Section 1. Definition of Multidisciplinary Programs

The faculty establish multidisciplinary programs upon the recommendation of the committee on curricular policies following a curricular proposal presented to committee on curricular policies by members of two or more departments. Every program has a faculty director and a steering committee whose membership is defined by program by-laws. Faculty membership in the program is determined by the following criteria: a contractual agreement to participate in the program or participation in the program as defined in the program's by-laws. Each program maintains a current faculty membership list in keeping with this definition.

Section 2. Educational Policy

A. Programs determine their own educational practice within the framework of college educational policies adopted by the faculty and administered by the dean of the faculty. Program faculty act on matters of concern to a specific program only after members have had reasonable opportunity to discuss them and make recommendations.

B. An individual faculty member has freedom in the conduct of classes within the scope of the courses assigned to them so far as is compatible with the interests of the program as a whole and of the college.

Section 3. Governance of Programs

A. The governance of every program is determined by its by-laws. The director and the steering committee of the program are responsible for ensuring that the governance of the program is in keeping with its by-laws. Voting in the program must conform to the college's rules about academic suffrage.

B. The dean of the faculty appoints the director of a new program for a term of three years. Thereafter, the director is elected by the program membership, in accordance with its by-laws, and ratified and appointed by the dean of the faculty. In the case where the normal electoral process fails to yield a director elected by a majority, the dean of the faculty appoints a director for a term of three years, after consultation with the program's steering committee. The duties of the director are described in the by-laws of the program.

C. By-laws for each program are reviewed by the faculty policy and conference committee and by the dean of the faculty to ensure their conformity with the Governance. Every program's by-laws must include, at a minimum, the following procedures:

1. Ordinarily a director's term is for three years. While re-election of a director is not precluded, election of a new director from among the eligible members of the program is the normal practice.
2. Reviews are carried out by at least two tenured members of the faculty representing two departments. In the case of promotion to full professor, the reviewers are at the rank of full professor.
3. Members of a program with suffrage in the program who are on leave are entitled to vote in the election of the director and in decisions concerning extension of contract, reappointment, tenure, and promotion to full professor in which they would normally be entitled to vote.
4. Meetings of the steering committee or of the membership of the program, where different, are called by the director upon the request of any two members of the program.
5. The director consults on a regular basis with the steering committee about matters relevant to the curriculum, staffing, and activities of the program.

D. Before a program may hire a tenure track faculty member (with a joint or sole appointment in the program) the bylaws must also be consistent with the following:

1. The steering committee
  - a. The program steering committee requires there to be at least four tenured members of the faculty as current member.
  - b. The length of term for membership on the steering committee is defined as at least three years.
  - c. The qualifications for membership on the steering committee are articulated.

- d. The procedure for inviting faculty to serve as members of the steering committee is articulated.
- e. Failure to meet a minimum level of involvement in the program and on the steering committee, as specified in the qualifications for membership on the steering committee, results in automatic resignation from the steering committee.
- f. The responsibility for maintaining an accurate list of current and former members of the steering committee is clearly assigned.

2. The conduct of reviews

- a. Reviews of tenure track faculty appointed to the program for extension of contract, reappointment, tenure, and promotion are conducted by the following:
  1. All members of the steering committee who are of rank superior to the faculty member under review and whose term on the steering committee includes at least half of the period of service under review;
  2. All past members of the steering committee who are of rank superior to that of the faculty member under review and whose past term on the steering committee includes at least half of the period of service under review;
  3. The current program director, if the director is of rank superior to the faculty member under review, and all past directors of rank superior to the faculty member under review who served as director at any point during the period of service under review.
- b. The current program director, if eligible to participate in the review, chairs the review. Otherwise, the most senior faculty member eligible to participate in the review chairs the review.
- c. If there are fewer than two faculty members from two different departments eligible to participate in the review, an ad hoc committee is formed.

In consultation with the faculty appointment and salary committee, the faculty policy and conference committee may establish further guidelines for program by-laws.

Copies of program by-laws are kept on file in the dean of the faculty office and are available to any member of the faculty.

By-laws are reviewed and resubmitted to the dean of the faculty by programs every six years. The review is conducted by an ad hoc committee of program members, constituted by the director after consultation with the steering committee. The ad hoc committee should represent the range of curricular commitments and interests and the different ranks of the faculty.

By-laws of new programs are written by the program director and an ad hoc committee constituted by the program director and the dean of the faculty.

Section 4. Review of Members of Programs for Extension, Reappointment, Tenure and Promotion

A. A faculty member with a full-time appointment in a program is reviewed by the program in accordance with its by-laws, which have been reviewed by the faculty policy and conference committee and the dean of the faculty to ensure their conformity with the Governance.

B. In the case of a joint appointment in a department and a program, the candidate receives a full review by each. Following an initial independent evaluation by the department and the program, two participants from each review meet to share the respective initial evaluations. A written report of their discussion, stating areas of agreement and disagreement, is given to the candidate, the program and department members involved in the review, the faculty appointment and salary committee, the dean of the faculty, and the president. The program and the department take the report into consideration in making their separate recommendations to the faculty appointment and salary committee, the dean, and the president. In arriving at their final recommendation, the faculty appointment and salary committee and the dean consider both the program's and the department's recommendations. It is the responsibility of the faculty appointment and salary committee, the dean, and the president, who alone have access to all of the evidence, to reach a final decision with due consideration to the relative importance of the candidate's participation in the program and in the department.

C. Any member of the faculty who has taught at least half time in a program (an average of five courses originating in the program over two years) is reviewed by the program in one of two ways: a partial review or a full review. After consultation with the program director, the candidate chooses either 1) a partial review, which evaluates the candidate's teaching in and service to the program, conducted in accordance with the by-laws of the program; or 2) a full review, which also includes evaluation of scholarly or artistic activity, following the same procedure as a review of a candidate with a joint appointment.

D. Any faculty member who has participated in a program but has taught less than half time in the program over the period of review may request a partial or full review by the program at the time of extension, reappointment, tenure, or promotion. This review is conducted according to the program's by-laws.

Article V. Amendment

The provisions of this Part B of The Educational Organization of the College may be amended or repealed by vote of the board of trustees after conference with the faculty, or by a two-thirds majority vote of the faculty subject to approval by the board of trustees. The faculty does not act on amendments at the meeting in which they are first discussed.

Part 6. The By-Laws of the Faculty

Article I. Suffrage

Section 1. Academic Suffrage

The right to vote on matters affecting educational policy (including admissions, academic advising, curriculum, requirements for degrees, scholarships and fellowships, faculty research, election of faculty committees, revision of the Governance) is limited to:

1. The following teaching members of the faculty: All members of the faculty on tenure-line appointments; all other members of the faculty on not less than half-time teaching appointment after one year's service at the college.
2. The following members of the educational administration: The president, the dean of the faculty, the dean of strategic planning and academic resources, the dean of the college, the dean of studies, the director of the Frances Lehman Loeb Art Center, the director of the library, the professional librarians, the director of the Writing Center, and the director of the Quantitative Reasoning Center.
3. The following additional members of the department of Athletics and Physical Education: Coaches of athletics who hold full-time appointments at the rank of lecturer and whose teaching and/or coaching responsibility is not less than half of their contractual responsibility.
4. Others, if they hold the rank of lecturer: The director of the Wimpfheimer Nursery School; coordinators of laboratory instruction who hold full-time appointments; and curators who hold full-time appointments.

Section 2. General Suffrage

General suffrage on matters other than educational policy is granted to all those who have academic suffrage as well as to other members of the faculty and officers of the college as determined by the president after consultation with the faculty appointment and salary committee. The president and the faculty appointment and salary committee have joint authority to clarify suffrage in uncertain cases.

Section 3. Leaves of Absence

Individuals with suffrage on leave of absence may participate in meetings of the faculty but may not vote. Members of the faculty on leave of absence may nominate persons to serve on faculty committees and vote in elections for such committees.

Article II. Faculty Meetings

Meetings of the faculty are conducted in accordance with Robert's Rules of Order, except that a written ballot is used at the request of any voting member. If the chair or any member of the faculty expresses doubt as to the outcome of a voice vote, the vote is subject to written ballot conducted in the meeting by the secretary of the faculty and administrators from the office of the dean of the faculty.

In addition to calling regularly scheduled faculty meetings, the president calls meetings at their discretion or on petition of any ten members of the faculty. Notices of faculty meetings with agendas ordinarily are issued at least five days in advance.

Matters involving changes in educational policy ordinarily are referred to the appropriate committee for consideration prior to action by the faculty. Actions on proposed changes cannot be taken at the meeting in which they are first discussed.

Attendance at faculty meetings is restricted to members who have general suffrage. Other members of the college community may be invited by the president to attend specific meetings.

One-third of the members of the faculty who have academic suffrage constitute a quorum.

Minutes of the meetings, for the permanent records of Vassar College, are taken by the secretary of the faculty, a member of the faculty appointed by the president.

Article III. Amendment

All provisions of these By-laws may be amended by a two-thirds vote of the faculty after consultation with the president. Proposed amendments to these By-laws are transmitted to the trustee executive committee for its information. The faculty does not act on amendments at the meeting in which they are first discussed.

Part 7. Committees

Article I. Organization of Committees

Section 1: Introduction

Recognizing the need for efficiency in a democratic system of governance, the faculty elects committees to perform certain functions. Participation in monthly general faculty meetings and service on committees are opportunities for, and necessary parts of, contributing to the shared governance of the college, especially in determining and directing the educational policy of the institution. In general, the faculty makes educational policy and reviews associated administrative practice. Faculty committees formulate and recommend policy to the faculty. The administration facilitates the work of the faculty and students by implementing these policies. Committees are accountable to the faculty and other relevant constituencies.

Section 2. Eligibility

A. Committee membership is limited, except as otherwise specified, to members of the faculty and educational administration who have general suffrage, part-time faculty who have academic suffrage, and to students on designated committees. No faculty member is eligible for immediate reelection or reappointment to a particular governance committee unless specifically permitted in the statement describing a committee. However, one-year replacements are eligible for reelection or reappointment to a full term.

B. No member of the faculty may serve simultaneously on more than one of the following committees unless specifically required to do so in the descriptions of committee membership: faculty appointment and salary committee, faculty policy and conference committee, and committee on curricular policies.

C. Some committees have rank or tenure membership requirements. If a change in the status of a faculty member contravenes these requirements, then that member becomes ineligible to serve. The Committee on Committees fills the vacated position by appointment or election, as appropriate. Some committees have divisional membership requirements. For the purposes of representation on committees the departments of instruction are organized into three divisions: (1) arts and literature; (2) social sciences; (3) natural sciences and mathematics. Occasionally committees will also specify multidisciplinary representation.

Section 3. Students

Where specified in the committee membership, participation by students in committee work constitutes an opportunity and expectation for student engagement in shared governance of the college. The processes for selection of student representatives are determined by the Vassar Student Association,

Article II. Faculty Governance Committees

The following are the faculty governance committees:

Section 1. Committee on Curricular Policies

Purpose: The committee on curricular policies (CCP) considers all policies and practices of the college related to the curriculum. CCP recommends changes in general curricular policy to the faculty. CCP considers proposed changes in department and program course offerings before presenting them to the faculty for approval.

Membership: The committee on curricular policies consists of: the dean of the faculty (chair); four members of the faculty, one from and representing each division and one multidisciplinary program director (currently serving, or having served within the past six years), elected for two years with staggered terms so that two retire each year; two students from the student curriculum committee with majors in a department and a multidisciplinary program, one of whom is ordinarily the Academic Executive of the Vassar Student Association (VSA); and, as non-voting members, the dean of studies and the registrar. No two divisional or multidisciplinary elected faculty members come from the same department or program. If faculty members resign from membership on the committee during their term, the Committee on Committees appoints a replacement representing the same division or, if the resigning member was the multidisciplinary program director member, another multidisciplinary program director representative. Faculty and student representatives to the committee consult on curricular initiatives with the constituencies they represent.

Section 2. Faculty Policy and Conference Committee

Purpose: The faculty policy and conference committee represents the faculty in relations with the trustees concerning substantial changes in educational policy and in terms and provisions of employment of the faculty and in matters of faculty housing policy.

FPCC confers with the trustees and administration on behalf of the faculty in establishing priorities for the allocation of the college's resources. It evaluates the incorporation of these priorities in the operating and capital budgets as prepared by the administration and approved by the trustees.

FPCC considers revisions to the Faculty Handbook and to the following sections of the Governance: Relations of Trustees and Faculty, The Educational Organization of the College, and By-laws of the Faculty.

FPCC discusses matters of concern referred to the committee by faculty or administration; it may also initiate studies of its own. It may seek advice from, or refer specific matters to, other faculty committees.

FPCC serves as the faculty's committee on conference with the trustees with the exception of conferences reserved to the faculty appointment and salary committee and the faculty compensation committee.

Working with the faculty appointment and salary committee, FPCC annually assesses the performance of the president and their administration in a written report to the personnel committee of the board of trustees and discusses the report in a meeting with that committee.

FPCC serves as the faculty's committee on conference with the students.

Membership: The faculty policy and conference committee consists of three elected faculty members, one from each professorial rank (the professor is the chair); one elected budget member from the tenured ranks; the second-year full professor on the faculty appointment and salary committee; and a member from the committee on curricular policies, selected annually by the faculty members of that committee. The full and associate professors as well as the budget member serve 3-year terms and the assistant professor serves a two-year term. Upon promotion of an assistant or associate professor member, the promoted member serves on the committee until a replacement is elected.

Section 3. Faculty Appointment and Salary Committee

Purpose: The faculty appointment and salary committee (FASC) advises the president and the dean of the faculty in accordance with the provisions of the Governance, (See The Educational Organization of the College: with listing of appropriate sections). FASC participates in appointments, reappointments, promotions, granting tenure, and reviewing dismissals. Only the three full professors act in cases of promotion from associate to full professor, and in granting tenure to persons hired at the rank of full professor. FASC reviews cases of extension of initial professor contracts and reappointments of two-year instructors when there is a negative recommendation from either the department or the dean.

FASC conducts its reviews independently, and then submits a recommendation to the dean of the faculty. Both FASC and the dean make a joint recommendation to the president. After all relevant substantive evidence, including external evaluations, has been considered, the president, the dean of the faculty, and FASC may meet with departments or programs if they require additional information or if their preliminary discussions indicate the likelihood of a decision contrary to the department's or program's recommendation. The Faculty Handbook describes the procedures for all appointments and reviews.

Faculty members are free to consult informally with any member of FASC. FASC, however, is precluded from responding to faculty members under review once their materials have been submitted for review, except under circumstances specified by the Faculty Handbook.

Working with FPCC, FASC annually assesses the performance of the president and their administration in a report to the personnel committee of the board of trustees.

Membership: The faculty appointment and salary committee consists of three tenured professors, elected for three years, and two tenured associate professors elected for two years, one member at each rank retiring each year. The chair is the professor with the longest service on the committee. No department may be represented by more than one committee member. Continuity of service on this committee is essential, so individuals accepting nomination to the committee should plan to serve a full term.

Section 4. Appeal Committee

Purpose: The appeal committee considers grievances by individual faculty members in matters of promotion, tenure and reappointment and hears certain other appeals as described in the Policy Against Discrimination and Harassment and the Policy on Consensual Relationships Between Faculty and Students. Only the following categories of grievances may be considered:

1. Faculty members on term appointment allege that abridgment of academic freedom, as defined in Principles Underlying Relations of Trustees, Faculty, and Students significantly contributed to a decision to terminate their appointment at its expiration;
2. Faculty members allege that a decision on their promotion, tenure or reappointment was affected significantly by failure to observe fully the process and principles prescribed by the Governance and the Faculty Handbook;
3. When the remedy or sanction following a determination of a violation of the Policy Against Discrimination and Harassment could involve an adjustment to the normal procedures for a faculty review, the Appeal Committee determines what changes, if any, are necessary. The procedure for determining changes is described in the Faculty Handbook in the Policy against Discrimination and Harassment. (Amended by the faculty, May 2015)
4. A faculty member who has been a respondent in a harassment or discrimination grievance hearing appeals the determination and/or the sanction of the grievance panel, as described in the policy against discrimination and harassment.

5. A faculty member appeals a determination or disciplinary action under the Policy on Consensual Relationships Between Faculty and Students.

The Faculty Handbook describes the procedures and determinations of the appeal committee for each of these cases.

Membership: The appeal committee consists of three tenured members of the faculty and two assistant professors. The term of service is two years. Two tenured members and one assistant professor retire in one year; one of each category of members retires in alternate years. No department chair or program director serves on the committee and no department is represented by more than one member. No member of FASC may be elected to serve on the appeal committee in the year immediately following their retirement from FASC. Each year the committee elects one of its tenured members as chair. If a member faces a conflict of interest in a particular issue before the appeal committee, the chair requests the committee on committees to appoint a temporary substitute.

Section 5. Review Committee

Purpose: In the case of a recommendation to dismiss a faculty member for cause, the faculty member may request that a review committee be constituted. The review committee reviews the case and makes an independent recommendation to the president, the dean of the faculty, and the faculty appointment and salary committee as provided in The Educational Organization of the College.

The appeal committee may also request a review committee be constituted if non-tenured faculty members allege that an abridgment of academic freedom significantly contributed to a decision to terminate their appointment at its expiration, as provided in The Educational Organization of the College. In such cases, the burden of proof rest with the faculty members for establishing the grounds upon which the allegations are based.

Membership: A separate review committee is constituted for each case. The committee on committees appoints the membership of the review committee, which consists of three tenured professors. The committee elects a chair from its membership.

Section 6. Faculty Compensation Committee

Purpose: The faculty compensation committee advises the president on the aggregate amount that is annually allotted to faculty compensation and, in cooperation with the faculty policy and conference committee and the committee on benefits, on the nature and magnitude of faculty insurance, pension and other benefits. The committee has the right to report to and confer with the appropriate trustee committee in the event that the faculty compensation committee's recommendation differs from that of the president.

The faculty compensation committee recommends general guidelines to the president, dean of the faculty, and faculty appointment and salary committee for the distribution of salary among ranks. The committee reports to the faculty after the conclusion of the allocation of faculty compensation.

Membership: The faculty compensation committee consists of the three professors of the faculty appointment and salary committee and the chair and budget member of the faculty policy and conference committee. The chair of FASC serves as the chair of the faculty compensation committee.

Section 7. Committee on Committees

Purpose: After the results of elections to committees have been announced, the committee on committees chooses faculty members for vacancies on other committees including the following standing committees: climate action and sustainability committee, campus responsibility committee, college regulations committee, academic panel, committee on college life, and committee on housing. When elections fail to fill positions on elective college committees, the committee on committees fills those positions until the next election can lead to an elected representative on the committee. It selects faculty representatives on ad hoc committees when so authorized by the faculty. It also appoints the college marshal for a five-year term.

Membership: The committee on committees consists of four members of the faculty, two of them tenured, elected for two years with two retiring each year. The committee elects a tenured member to be chair and a second member to be the elections officer who conducts the balloting for standing elective committees.

Section 8. Committee on Housing

Purpose: The committee on housing supports the residential nature of the campus through the administration of housing policy related to Vassar's rental and leasehold properties. The committee on housing is responsible for considering general questions of housing policy and for the application of established policy to particular cases. The committee also serves as the body to which administrative rulings concerning housing may be appealed.

The enforcement of all provisions and regulations described in the Faculty Handbook is the responsibility of the dean of strategic planning and academic resources in consultation with the committee on housing.

Membership: The committee on housing consists of three members of the faculty, elected by the faculty for a term of three years, one member rotating off each year, two of whom are tenured and one untenured.

Section 9. Library Committee

Purpose: The library committee collaborates with the Director of the Library on library policies, initiatives and new directions that affect the library's central role in the educational mission of the College. Its agenda reflects the curricular interests of the faculty and the interests of the community as a whole as they relate to the resources and services of the library.

As educational technology issues arise, the library committee consults with the committee on academic technologies. The library committee reports annually to the faculty on its activities and brings all issues that may significantly affect the library's role as an educational unit of the College to the faculty for discussion.

Membership: The library committee consists of the Director of the Library (co-chair); a faculty co-chair, who is tenured and elected at large for a three-year term; the dean or associate dean of the faculty; the dean or associate dean of strategic planning and academic resources; one librarian; four faculty members, no more than two from any division, elected for two years, two retiring each year, and two students. No department is represented by more than one faculty member.
